Black suits are made with vests of wide-striped siles.

Checks and stripes play a large part in the trimming of many of the Spring gowns. A stunning suit which I saw not long ago of blue voile was made entirely over a blue and white check silk, the checks being almost an inch square. A frock of black chiffon was made over a flounced undetskirt which had each ruffle finished with a band of striped black, and white silk an inch and a half deep, the stripes running up and down.

The Paris openings show that volle, wool, silk, or cotton is used a great deal in the development of the new gowns. There are separate waists l also made of it, usually in sand or putty colors. They suit the khakt and field cloth suits which are the rage of early Spring.

Simplicity is the mode in these waists which button primly down the front and are sometimes tucked singly or in clusters. High collars soit. and boned only at the sides, are very, popular. How One Man Got Something For Nathing.

In the current issue of Farm and Firenide, the national farm paper published at Springfield, Ohio, D. S. Burch, writing an interesting and uceful article entitled, "Fences That Laugh at Father Time," tells what materials will last th clongest and cont the least. He makes the point that fence posts that have been treated with some form of preservative are of especial value and then he tells the following story of how a Texas farmer got his posta:

"Getting creosoted posts free of charge is not very common, but this is the way a homesecker in Texas managed it. He noticed that discarded railroad ties were burned to get them out of the way, so he had his friend, the section boss, save them for him. In two years' time he had fenced fences, using the old railroad ties for ing in mud dried quickly and made perfectly good posts."
